

Engine Manufacturer Warranties

The small print in the warranties of virtually all engine manufacturers basically state that the use of an additive will NOT void the warranty in itself but if a failure can be proven to be caused by the additive the repairs would not be covered by warranty.

During our 20 plus year history with FPC and during the over 40 year history of this product there has not been one case of an engine failure or of even a claim of failure being lodged against us.

In addition the terms of our warranty provide a guarantee against engine failures due to the use of FPC.

Additionally we have in place product liability coverage to cover any claims against losses due to the use of FPC.
